California Power Systems has been the Western U.S. Regional Rotax Service Center since 1981. It offers Rotax engines, parts, and other Light Sport products to aviators around the world. In addition to engine and parts sales from its Corona, Calif., facility, California Power Systems also maintains a maintenance shop and a Rotax engine training facility at the nearby Chino Airport (CNO).

We have staff working full time adding descriptions and pictures to our web database. There are still products on our web page without a detailed description, and this product is one of them. The priority with which we add descriptions and pictures is determined by factors such as how often this part is being clicked on, and searched for.

If you need information on this product, we would be happy to add it immediately. Simply enter your email address below, and click the "OK" button. We will then add a product description and a picture (if available) as soon as possible. You will receive an email as soon as the corresponding information has been added to the web. This usually happens within a few hours after you have sent your request.
