If you are considering relocating to Bucharest, it is essential to clearly understand the average cost of living in the city. Bucharest is Romania's capital and largest city, and while it offers a high quality of life, it is also known as one of the most affordable European capitals. This article will explore the average cost of living in Bucharest, covering essential expenses such as housing, transportation, utilities, food, and entertainment.

The cost of housing in Bucharest can vary depending on the property's location, size, and condition. On average, you can expect to pay around $400 to $700 monthly for a one-bedroom apartment in the city center. If you are willing to live in the outskirts, the prices can drop to $300 to $500 per month, or even lower.

The cost of purchasing a property in Bucharest is relatively affordable compared to other European cities, with an average square meter price of around $1,700 to $2,200. Yet, when we write this post, the market expects a drop as of November 2023. This is for those who want to wait a bit and purchase their dream house in Bucharest.

Apart from that, expats and digital nomads should understand that for their peace of mind and to abide by the law, the rental contracts should be registered by the owner of the property to the local fiscal administration & ANAF.
