Are you sure you don't want to add a card? If your lease company, your employer or your own company provides your charge point, you will probably have (or will receive) a charge card that you can use for business purposes.

Please note: To comply with Dutch regulations, all charge points that are set to "Paid by guests" have to be visible on the map, so EV drivers can look up charge point information such as pricing in EV driver apps.

Every EV driver will see your charge point and your charge point name in public charging apps and is able to charge here. You will be responsible for providing service to EV drivers that charge on your charge point.

You are hereby providing Shell Recharge with your consent to be automatically charged each month for charge services and/or subscription and transaction costs. The complete conditions and instructions regarding the costs and cancelling your subscription are available here.

Customers that enable payments by credit card are subject to an added monthly fee that Shell Recharge plans to incur in the future. Before this extra fee is charged, customers will be informed by Shell Recharge and will have time to opt out

To comply with Dutch regulations, all charge points that are set to "Paid by guests" have to be visible on the map, so EV drivers can look up charge point information such as pricing in EV driver apps.

The location of your charge point can be shown in the Shell Recharge app, Shell Recharge and on public websites. This way, other electric drivers can easily find your charge point and see whether it is available for charging.
